Research shows that children who are connected to nature experience positive benefits to their social, emotional, academic, and physical development and well-being. This workshop will help early childhood teachers to:

- Foster children’s curiosity about nature through outdoor exploration and play-based learning
- Offer ideas on how to bring the outdoors into the classroom that includes sensory experiences, singing, dancing, and movement

Participants will receive a curriculum that contains 130 experiences that engage young children (ages 3 to 6 years) in outdoor play and exploration. This training is provided at a reduced cost due to the generous support of a Project Learning Tree grant and the United Way of Racine County.
