Children come into our child care classrooms with a variety of needs. What can we do, as child care teachers, to help a child function across environments and engage with their peers?

We need to meet children where they are at... do they need more movement? Can they let you know what they want using signs and maybe not words right away? If a child seems clumsy, can we help that child move better?

Learn techniques that can help children with special and unique needs thrive in the classroom. From sensory to the classroom environment, we want to give you a "bag of tricks" to try to help the classroom function for all children.
